THE LAST TO SURRENDER.

In former years the whole Pacific Coast region West of the Rocky Mountains scorned the nickel and copper as too insignificant to be worthy of place in the people's circulating medium. Today Nevada is the only place in North America where these small coins do not pass current for change in the smaller transactions of the people. In California and Colorado, and all around us, business men will change a twenty dollar piece to collect the nimble nickel, and copper cents are met with everywhere on the Coast outside of Nevada. There is nothing in Nevada that can be bought for a nickel, and as for coppers, Nevada squaws along the line of the railroad hurl them back with contempt when tendered to the black-eyed papoose in the wicker-basket by the generous-hearted Eastern tourist. There was a time in Nevada, not many years ago either, when mining was at its zenith here that a quarter of a dollar was the lowest denomination honored with a place in our currency. We gradually changed our business methods with the times and the influx of people from the older States, and finally came down to the dime as the minimum measure of value. For our own part we shall not care if we never go lower. It may not be economical and all that but to us there is something broader and nobler in the system that prevails here than is to be found elsewhere on the face of the inhabitable globe. It distinguishes the true Nevadan as the most hospitable, generous and warm-hearted individual in this world. There is nothing mean nor picayunish in his composition. As a matter of fact he stands without a peer in all the better qualities of the human heart. We speak generally of course, and shall not deny that there is to be found now and then in the State the necessary exception to maintain the integrity of the rule. But as a mass we pit the people of Nevada against all the rest of Christendom for open-hearted liberality. We may be small in numbers, but we are warm and big of heart.—Eureka Sentinel.

Swift Prophecies.

John F. Swift, who was recently in Washington wrote to J. R. Finlayson of Reno:

I went about enough in the East to satisfy myself that Blaine will be the nominee, whether we like it or not. Instead of making him out of the question by the result of the last election in New York, that election put his nomination among the inevitable and natural invincible necessities. It is clear—or at least it was clear as soon as the election was over—that if Blaine could not carry New York against Cleveland then nobody could, and we might as well give up the fight. Of course I am speaking of the state of feeling when the result was announced—that is, next day after the election of November last. Now the whole matter is suddenly changed. Cleveland's most welcome letter—or rather message to Congress—again changed the whole aspect of the case. Blaine is now the St. George of Republicanism, and comes in triumph to rescue us from the dungeon of free trade.

—We beg leave to differ from our contemporary, The Sacramento Record-Union, when it has: "San Francisco belongs to the State." A good deal of San Francisco fairly belongs to Nevada. It was treasure dug from Comstock mines that built the palaces on "Nob Hill," it was the taking out of this State of wealth that should have been expended in developing her natural resources and enabled San Francisco to become what she is to-day.

So that it is scarcely just to say that San Francisco belongs to California. When a Comstocker hears such an assertion he naturally reaches out his finger whether he gets it in the pie or not.—Enterprise.

—The barometer is lower than it has been here for ten years. Look out for a big storm inside of ten days.

—A well-authenticated report is current that about the middle of January the local banks will give greater accommodations to brokers, so as to enable them to carry stocks on margins more freely. At present there is a little tightness in the money market, and it curtails operations in the stock market and tends to keep prices down.—S. F. Report.
